

Tune in!
Get the latest news & updates

▶ Latest News

- ▶ PMHF Publications
- ▶ For Media
- ▶ News Archive
- ▶ Publications Archive
- ▶ Media Releases Archive

Latest News

December 10, 2007

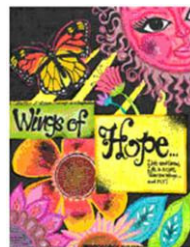

Write for Life Oncology Book Program Inspires Young Writers

Joanna Severino, a cancer survivor and former PMH patient, believes in taking part in changing suffering into opportunity and started "Wings of Hope", an annual oncology book contest at PREPSKILLS, to help inspire others to celebrate each day's blessings.

The "Wings of Hope" book contains student written poems, essays and images celebrating the beauty of life. This book contest is open to all students who enter their written submission online and artwork mailed in by March 31, 2008. The book is distributed to major hospitals such as Princess Margaret Hospital and supports the Childhood Cancer Foundation.

Prizes will be awarded for the best written submission, artwork for the book cover and the school with the most submissions. The student with the most inspiring written piece will be recognized in the book and receive a $100 cash prize. The artwork chosen for the book cover will have the student recognized in the book and receive a $100 cash prize. Also, the school with the most submissions will receive a plaque.

You can order the "Wings of Hope" book for $15 + GST via the PREPSKILLS website www.prepskills.com or by calling 416-200-7728.

Wings of Hope
2007
PREPSKILLS
Knowledge - Choice - Success

 DONATE NOW!

Did You Know?

-  The design and development of The Hemitron, a machine used to deliver full and half-body radiation was created at PMH.
» More...